

LONDON CLEAN MODELLING GROUP

CleanLearning

KINGS CROSS LONDON

With Stuart Clark and Lucy Walker

We are looking for seasoned clean modellers and newcomers to join us to learn and practise their skills in a face-to-face environment.

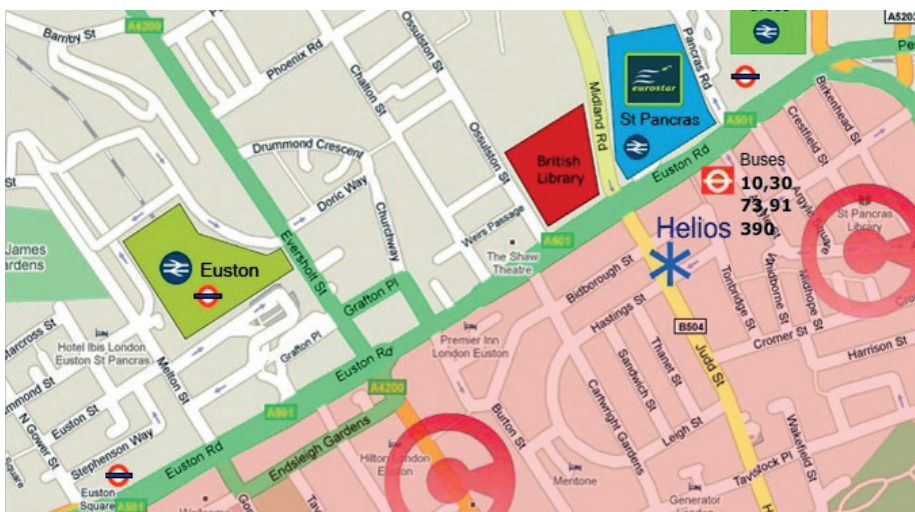

The group will be run cleanly and systemically and we will use the diversity in the group to create a high level of individual and group learning.

Over the months we'll be practising any and all of the skills related to the Clean Language of David Grove, including Clean Language itself, Clean Space, Systemic Modelling, Symbolic Modelling and Emergent Knowledge.

We want to build a community of like-minded people, with meetings focused on learning new skills and practising live rather than on presentations. Your own needs and desires will help to drive the agenda and we'll also make use of the tried-and-tested modelling activities and clean games that we have accumulated over the years.

Join us to:

- Discover more about Clean Language and how it may be useful for you
- Practise, refine and build your existing clean modelling skills
- Try out and refine new ideas
- Discover your training needs and create new activities to meet those needs
- Find new like-minded people to practise with
